The City of Ottumwa might be the first in Iowa to face trial over $1.9 million spent on the purchase of a municipal wireless system. In a non-binding court verdict handed down earlier this month, a jury ruled the purchase of the Spectrum One wireless system was not an “unlawful means” because it was a “routine” item for municipal government. The case, which was filed by a resident who claims the city’s purchase of the Spectrum One system would not be approved by the state, made its way to the Iowa Court of Appeals after the Ottumwa City Council voted in favor of building the system in February 2012. The vote on Feb. 10, 2012, was not only the first time the city approved spending on the System On a Need-to-know basis, it was also the first time the council held a public meeting. According to the city, hundreds attended. The court filing states that the system is used for city phone applications and monitoring EMS dispatch calls. Janet Felberbuehler, spokeswoman for the City of Ottumwa, said the city and the public will see the verdict as a “victory for transparency.” “We were
